ANTON LAVEY AND THE CHURCH OF SATAN

- Anton Szandor Lavey (born Howard Stanton Levey; April II, 1930 – October 29, 1997) – American author, carnival and circus performer, musician, and occultist. Wrote the "The Satanic Bible" in 1969.
- Lavey became a local celebrity through live musical performances and publicly held weekly lectures on the Occult and ritual magic hosted at his home in San Francisco, dubbed "The Black House" by his followers.
- From this growing circle of friends and followers, the early beginnings of the Church of Satan formed built upon Lavey's personal teachings and philosophy which was deeply influenced by philosophers such as Ayn Rand, Nietzsche, and Mencken; and by writers such as Twain, Milton, and Byron.
- Church of Satan was soon after founded in San Francisco, California on April 30, 1966.

"Diabolicon"

"And upon this Earth we touched many things. Into floral, animal, and insensate matter alike we brought accident, change, and spontaneity, both great and humble. But of all creatures it was man whom we determined to infuse with pure intelligence and Will. And the full story of this shall yet be told.

What might become of man we knew not, for within him were many qualities alien to angels. It did not escape our consideration that we might have chosen a species whose power might ultimately eclipse our own and cause our eventual extinction. We were mindful of the risk in our experiment, and oft did the warning of Michael echo within my thought. Yet our decision was sealed, and we deemed that the greatness of man should not be transcended by such ruin as he might bring."

— Michael Aquino, Diabolicon

CEREMONY OF THE NINE ANGLES

This ceremony is to be performed in a closed chamber containing no curved surfaces whatsoever. No open flames are to be in the chamber except for a single brazier or flame pot. General illumination is provided through controlled starlight or moonlight, or via concealed ultraviolet devices. Above and behind the altar platform should appear the outline of a regular trapezoid. The celebrant and participants all wear masks or headpieces to blur or distort the true facial features.

All participants assemble in a half-hexagonal formation facing the large trapezoid emblem. The celebrant stands before the altar, facing the participants. He raises his left hand in the Sign of the Horns
